True Temperance Retarded

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—If the Democratic party with Gov.
Smith at its head goes before the country this fall "on a temperance platform instead of uttering mealy-mouthed platitudes," said United States Senator Edwards of New Jersey here yesterday.

Edwards, who is on his way to the Democratic National Convention, in a statement said his party was not a Western man and that as architect of the restored building he would insist that the plans be followed out.

WHITNEY WARREN, American architect, yesterday prevented the erection of the balcony constructed on the order of the late Rector, which did not bear the inscription.
Warren has declared that the inscription was approved by the late Cardinal Mercier and was accepted in the original plans and that as architect of the restored building he would insist that the
plans be followed out.

the crowds about the Stock Ex-threat apparently sent by a man who had lost money in Wall Street. The detectives guarded all nearly street corners, scanning the faces of all who walked toward the exchange.

By the Associated Press.
LOUVAIN, June 23.—The little war that has been going on over the inscription to be placed over the new Louvain library entered an active phase today when an attempt to place the disputed inscription on the structure was stopped by the police. The police action was directed by Mgr. P.
Ladeuze, rector of the university, who is opposed to the inscription which translated from the Latin reads: "Destroyed by German fury, restored by American gen-

POINCARÉ INTRODUCES HIS BILL TO STABILIZE FRANC

Ratio of Gold to Paper Franc to Be Announced Tonight.

PARIS, June 23.—Without uttering a single word of explanation, Premier Poincaré introduced his stabilization of the franc bill in the Chamber of Deputies at 5:40 p. m. The Premier ascended the speaker's rostrum, deposited the voluminous document in the hands of the presiding official, Pierre Etienne Flandin, bowed and retired.

The bill was immediately referred to the Finance Committee before which the Premier will appear at 11 o'clock tonight when he will give the official figures of the gold ratio to the paper franc.

The chamber adjourned until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The stabilization bill provides that the Bank of France redeem its bank notes "either in gold currency having a legal circulation or at a ratio of milligrams of gold per franc in gold 900 fine."

The number of milligrams of gold per franc was left blank in the text to be inserted later.

The Bank of France must maintain in its vaults reserves of gold currency or bars equaling 35 per cent of the entire paper circulation.

Bank notes of 5, 10 and 20 francs denomination will be withdrawn from circulation before Dec. 31, 1927, and will be replaced by silver coins of 5 and 10 francs. The mint is given authority immediately to coin 100 franc gold pieces, 900 fine.

$500,000 MAIL
THEFT REPORTED ON LEVIATHAN

Rifling of Registered Letters Discovered After Bags Are Taken Ashore at Southampton.

By the Associated Press.
SOUTHAMPTON, England, June 23.—The theft of registered mail from the liner Leviathan estimated as high as $500,000 was discovered when the vessel arrived here yesterday from New York, it was learned today.

The Leviathan left New York on June 16 and the authorities express the view that the robbery took place in American waters.

It is reported that checks, bank drafts, bills of exchange and bank notes amounting to many thousand of pounds were involved in the thefts.

There were 3263 bags of letters and parcels on the liner, of which 1700 were for London and hundreds of others for various parts of Great Britain.

The authorities here state that there was every evidence that the robbery was planned with care and that the greatest cunning and carried out daringly. Nothing that could be negotiated easily was touched, and this, together with the thoroughness with which the robbery was carried out, seemed to support the theory that the letters were tampered with before they were placed aboard the Leviathan.

The registered letters were in small bags which had been sealed and placed in larger bags containing "unregistered" letters. These bags also were sealed with a small red seal bearing the impression of the United States Postoffice.

The mail, which was in charge of the United States Sea Postal staff while aboard the liner, was landed at Southampton last evening under such strict supervision that it was considered impossible that the bags were interfered with in any way. It was when the mail reached its destination and the bags containing the registered letters were opened that the robbery was discovered. The registered letters were found to have been split open and everything of a negotiable nature abstracted.

"As far as we can gather the robbery must have been carried out before the Leviathan left New York," said an officer at the London office of the United States Lines. The thefts were not discovered until the letters in the mail bags came to be sorted. The seals on the bags were then unbroken."

Mail Guard on Voyage.

Captain Cunningham, commander of the Leviathan, said today that the robbery could not possibly have been perpetrated aboard the liner.

"We unloaded the mail bags at Southampton," he said, "exactly in the same conditions as we took them on board. The United States Government seal was placed on the bags in the New York Postoffice.
They then were brought to the ship in mail automobiles with armed guards, were placed in the mail room and the door locked throughout the voyage. Four armed Government postal clerks were constantly on duty to see that the bags were not touched."

REED INDICATES
FIGHT TO FINISH
AGAINST SMITH

Senator, in Houston, Says Missouri Wants Nomination and Believes It Can Be Obtained.

MEETS LEADERS OF
OTHER FACTIONS

Not Yet Known Whether He Will Line Up With Proposed Coalition or Play Lone Hand.

By the Associated Press.
HOUSTON, Tex., June 23.—Senator Reed of Missouri said to newspaper men today that "the only maxim Missouri knows is 'to the end of the road.'"

"The Missouri delegation came down here to win this nomination if possible," he said. "They believe it can be won. If they lose, they will be found supporting the ticket with absolute loyalty."
"So far as my personal views are concerned, I think I have made them plain in some 50 speeches over the country."

Reed indicated that tomorrow he might issue a formal statement, and he cut the press conference short to renew discussions with leaders of several factions.

Bitter-end foes of Gov. Smith in the solid South were sponsors of a movement looking to a coalition of candidates with the hope of holding away enough convention strength to prevent his nomination on an early ballot. They thought that if this could be accomplished, the Smith planks would disintegrate.

Some Frown Upon Move.
Conferences to this end were inaugurated yesterday and continued today. Not all of the Southern states were represented, as Louisiana already is in the Smith column and party leaders from one or two others frowned upon any movement which might lead to a renewal of the bitter fight of four years ago at Madison Square Garden.

Reed conferred with his political advisers who informed him that apparently only a vigorous and concentrated drive could be made to prevent the nomination of Smith, and that such a counter attack had been launched by party leaders from the South. He gave no indication that he would abandon his usual practice of playing a lone hand.

The anti-Smith forces were heavily further by a statement issued last night by A. C. Sallee, representative of Evans Woolen, Indiana's favorite son, that the Indiana delegation would remain "steadfastly and loyally behind" the Indiana banker "until a candidate is chosen by the convention."

The 30 delegates from Indiana, under the State's law, cannot swing to any other candidate until released by Woolen. The Smith opponents said the managers of the New York Governor had counted on strength from Indiana in the final drive to put Smith over.

Three Candidates Present.

Sallee's statement was issued almost coincident with the arrival not only of Reed but also of Senator Walter F. George of Georgia, who has the endorsement of the delegation from his own State and is promised support from South Carolina, Florida and Alabama.

George said his state delegation not only was instructed to vote for him but that the members individually had said that they would stand by him as long as his name was before the convention. He added that he did not think Smith ever would get any Georgia votes.

With the arrival of George and Reed, the three presidential candidates were on the ground. The third is Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who has been here for some days helping in the arrangements for the opening of the convention Tuesday.

Smith Forces Confident.

Despite the evidences of increased activity in the camps of the enemy with prohibition as the rallying point, the Smith lieutenants appeared confident that nothing could stop their man and said they felt no concern over the situation. They passed the word that the New York Governor would have around 700 votes on the first ballot, and that after the convention had been afforded full opportunity to pass on the candidacy of the favorite sons and others he quickly would muster the 733 1-3 votes necessary to a nomination.

The Smith forces led by George, Van Name, member of the

THREE AVIATORS
OF MARINE CORPS
KILLED IN CRASH

Plane in Which They Were Traveling to Managua Goes Into Nose Dive
Over File, Va.

FOURTH MEMBER OF CREW INJURED

One of Officers Killed Was Major Charles A. Lutz, Assigned to Command
Air Force in Nicaragua.

By the Associated Press.
FILE, Va., June 23.—Major Charles A. Lutz, Marine Corps aviator, and two of his companions were killed here early today when his tri-motored transport plane crashed. Lieut. Horace C. Busbey and Major Lutz were killed instantly, their bodies being thrown 50 feet clear of the plane. Corporal D. C. McChesney died a few hours later. Corporal Reeder Nicols, though badly injured, is expected to live. The plane was on route from Washington to Miami on a flight to Managua.

Residents of this town were awakened by the roar of the motors as the big Fokker plane passed over the place. Some arose to see the machine go into a nose dive after circling the town several times, presumably in an attempt to land.

Corporal Nichols, radio operator, told some of the eye-witnesses of the crash that he did not know to what to attribute the accident as "we had reached the earth before I was aware of any trouble."

Corporal Nichols was carried to the home of a Mr. Anderson near Sparta, Va., where he is being treated for serious burns. The three bodies will be taken to Quantico.

The plane somersaulted several times, witnesses said, finally landing in a ravine.

Injured Man's Message.
The plane had been in constant communication with Anacostia Flying Field, and none of the messages indicated that anything was wrong, it was reported there.

Corporal Nichols was praised by Major-General Lejeune, marine commander here, for following his orders to report at once any forced landing.

"Marine plane wrecked at File, Va.," the Corporal telegraphed to Washington. "Major Lutz, Lieut.
Busbey killed. Corporal McChesney seriously condition. Corporal Nichols, very badly injured. Request instructions. Impossible change location for few days. Advise send plane look over situation."

Immediate Goal, Miami.

Maj. Lutz and the others had departed from the naval air station at Anacostia, near Washington, at 1:05 o'clock this morning in rainy weather. He had planned to fly to Miami today and continue on to Managua, where he was to have taken command of the marine air forces operating in Nicaragua.

Lieut. Busbey first planned to attempt the flight without a stop, but the Navy Department ruled against such a venture. Maj. Lutz's flight, had it been completed, would have been the first made by the Marine Corps to Managua.

Maj. Lutz recently won the Curtiss marine trophy for speed, making 175 miles an hour. He was 47 years old and had been flying for five years. He had been in command of the air forces at Quantico, Va.

Born in Illinois.

He was born in Illinois in 1881 and was appointed to the Marine Corps in 1905. His mother is residing at San Diego, Cal. His widow lives in Washington.

Lieut. Busbey was born in Washington, D. C., Jan. 11, 1900, and was commissioned in the Marine Corps in 1922. His widow, Mrs.
Rowena Busbey, resides in Pen-nsacola, Fla.

Corporal McChesney's home was in Detroit.
Corporal Nichols' mother, Mrs.
Zethor Ruple, lives in Florence, Ala.

WOMAN PILOT KILLED
WHEN PLANE FALLS

Machine Makes Sudden Dip
When Returning to Norfolk, Neb., Flying Field.

By the Associated Press.
NORFOLK, Neb., June 23.—Nebraska's first aviatrix, Mrs. Charles Tillotson of Battle Creek, was killed and her plane demolished at the Norfolk flying field last night.

Several persons who saw the accident said the woman was flying at an altitude of about 1500 feet and apparently was returning to the flying field when the machine made a sudden dip and crashed to earth. The plane tore through some telephone wires and buried its nose in the ground.

The pilot was dead when her body was removed from the wreckage. Mrs. Tillotson had made several solo flights previously and recently used the plane on a shopping trip to Omaha.

MRS. WOODROW WILSON
PASSES THROUGH ST. LOUIS

Widow of Former President to Take Part in Dedication of Houston Convention Hall.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of former President, passed through St. Louis today on her way to the Democratic National Convention, where she will attend the sessions as an observer and participate tomorrow in the dedication of San Houston Hall, where the sessions will be held. It will be the first time she attended a national convention.

Mrs. Wilson arrived at 1:25 p. m. on the Pennsylvania Railroad and departed at 2:10 p. m. via Missouri Pacific in a private car with Hugh C. Wallace of Tacoma, Wash., and Washington, D. C., former Ambassador to France under son, Melville. Mrs. Wilson declined to see reporters.

Wallace, who is not a delegate, predicted that Gov. Smith would be nominated on the first ballot.

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, June 23.—The coal steamer Marita, which arrived at Kings Bay today reported hearing radio S. O. S. signals at 11 o'clock last night, which were believed to have come from Roald Amundsen and five companions, missing since Monday night in a French plane.

The Marita picked up the S. O.
S. but heard nothing more. The steamer saw no sign of the plane although the weather was excellent.

In addition to Amundsen in the missing plane, which left Norway Monday night for Spitzbergen to search for the Noble party, were Liet Dietrichsen, Norwegian explorator, and four French naval flyers, including Commander Rene Guilbaud.

The steamer carried Lieut. Sarko and a Finnish plane. Lieut. Sarko plans to start for Virgo Bay tomorrow and thence to fly to Noble's party, which he is convinced he can rescue because of the small space he needs for making a landing and takeoff.

The plane needs a space of about 200 yards to land and 50 yards to take off, which is much less than any of the planes now here. The Lieutenant will attempt to land either on the ice or in the open water near the marooned party.

The plane carries radio and has a 10 hours' cruising radius.

LONDON, June 23.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen says the Russian ice-breaker, Malglin, has reported picking up unclear signals which are thought to have come from the seaplane carrying Roald Amundsen, Pilot Rene Guilbaud and four others.

Defense Department officials at Oslo, Norway, stated that, if the seaplane had alighted on the sea between Norway and Spitzbergen, it would still be possible for her to use her radio, but only over a radius of about 60 miles.

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, June 23.—Definite plans to take Gen.
Umberto Nobile and his five stranded companions from their ice camp off Northeast Land by airplane were made today.

The Swedish rescue expedition which has established a base at Virgo Bay, in Northwest Spitzber-gen, dropped additional supplies for the Noble group last night and today was going ahead with a plan to make a landing and to take the men off.

Capt. Tornberg, leader of the Swedish expedition, informed a Commander Romagna of the base ship Citta di Milano that he pro-

DR. HORACE REDDISH GETS YEAR AND A DAY IN PRISON Physician, Whose Sentence Was Deferred to Take "Cure," Found Using Drug Again. Dr. Horace Reddish of 912A Franklin avenue, was sentenced by Federal Judge Farris today to a year and a day in Leavenworth penitentiary for possession of narcotics. He entered a plea of guilty May 5, but sentence was deferred at his request so he could be treated for the drug habit at City Hospital.

Recipes of a Bon Vivant

Favorite Old Formulas, Collected by Joseph Leiter, Chicago Millionaire, and Published by Him for Circulation Among His Friends.

BLANC MANGER.

THIS recipe for a very well known and variously prepared dessert is taken from the famous Leiter collection of favorite recipes, and is the real blanc-manger, or blanc mange, as it usually is written.

Take two calves' feet, split them so that you can take out the large bone, scald them and refresh them with cold water. Next put them into a saucepan with a pint and a half of water and let them cook. Skim them whenever necessary. Let them cook two or three hours, strain the bouillon through a wet napkin. Blanch a quarter of a pound of sweet almonds and six bitter almonds, and chop them up, making a paste with them by moistening from time to time with a little water and oil. Put half a pint of water into a casserole with three-quarters of a pound of sugar, the zest of half a lemon, and a good pinch of coriander. Let this infuse for half an hour and then take out the coriander and lemon and pour the infusion over your almonds. Strain several times through a wet napkin, as much of the calves' foot jelly as is necessary to make the blanc-manger delicate, and taste it to see if it is flavored enough. When in a mould and let it get hard on the ice. You can make this blanc-manger with gelatine, isinglass, or essence of hartsorn if you wish instead of the calves' foot jelly.

CHARLOTTE DE POMME.

Peel 10 good sized russet apples, remove the cores and cut in very thin slices. Put these slices into a pan with a sufficient amount of powdered sugar, a little rind of lemon, a little cinnamon bark, and water. Let this mixture cook on a hot fire, stirring from time to time. Add a piece of butter and take out the cinnamon and lemon rind. Garnish the interior of a large mould, or casserole, with very small slices of bread dipped in melted (but not hot) butter, and place them one on the other. When this is done pour into the hollow the marmalade which you have just made, and add, if you wish, some preserves such as cherries, red currants or apricots. Cover it all with some more slices of the dipped bread and put it on the fire for a few minutes, watching it carefully so it will not burn. Then put it in the oven to brown. Turn it out onto a plate and serve very hot.

FROZEN RICE CUSTARD.

One cupful of rice, one quart of milk, one pint of cream, one cup of sugar, one teaspoon of salt, six oranges.

Boil the rice and drain through a colander, and then set to boil with the milk. When it has cooked for 20 minutes add the grated rind of an orange and the sugar, and let it simmer for one minute. When cold add the juice of an orange and the cream beaten, or whipped, to a froth. Four tablespoons of lemon juice may be substituted for the orange juice, if the taste is preferred. Then freeze exactly as you would ice cream, and serve with an orange sauce prepared as follows:

Boil together for 10 minutes one cupful of water, half a cup of sugar, and the grated yellow rind, or zest, of two oranges. Add to this the strained juice of four oranges. Cook and set to freeze. Boil three tablespoons of sugar with three of water for two minutes, beat this into the white of one egg, which already has been beaten to a stiff froth. Stir this meringue into the frozen mixture and the sauce will be ready to serve with the custard.

Household Hints.

Use rain water for storage batteries instead of distilled water, for which garages charge so much. It is just as safe, and free.

A tablespoonful of turpentine in the boiler on wash day will whiten the clothes beautifully.

Ammonia will take away that greasy look from coat collars. Go over them frequently.

Give all the nails on which damp clothes or towels are to be hung a coat of white enamel.

A lump of starch dissolved in the water when washing windows will make the glass clear and sparkling.

THREE GENERATIONS

By WARWICK DEEPIING

AUTHOR OF SOKRELL AND SON

He sat there perched on the fence.

SYNOPSIS.

(1) John Pybus, formerly a bookseller in London and later a Winterbourne, is serving as a porter in an inn at Castle Cranmore. He has been estranged from both his sons since the beginning of the war, and they have lost track of him. Conrad, his eldest son, is a wealthy man, and he has seen his father. Probyn's son, Lance Pybus, had believed his grandfather dead, but he looks him up at Saracen's Head, without telling his parents of the meeting. When Lance returns to Cambridge for the last term he visits his grandfather to visit him there.

On leaving Cambridge, Lance takes a small room in London and devotes himself to writing. His father gives him a modest allowance. He still continues to visit his grandfather secretly.

INSTALLMENT XXII.

DARKNESS.

AFTER dinner they danced in the hall. One of the young ladies had arrived from the lo-"Prizes had arrived from the lo-all personage and Conrad took her to Charleston. Lance was running the gramophone and watching his uncle's fat legs wobbling. Conrad danced like a jelly. Lance's face, too, was trying to Charleston with young Rowbottom.

Pamella Fish had come to sit on the oak settle beside the gramophone cabinet, and she was watching Lance's face. They had got on very well together during dinner. Her rather acid cleverness had appealed to Lance. He would have liked her to have spilled some of her accumulated cleverness over his uncle.

Observing the ditherings of Conrad's fat legs, and observed in turn by Miss Fish, he turned suddenly and met her eyes and the unexpressed wisdom of them. "Don't you dance this?" "Sometimes."

Her cold glance fastened upon Conrad Pybus and then passed to Lance's mother.

"When a man looks wrong, he is wrong."

"Infinitely. Whereas, when a woman looks wrong, it may only be the fashion."

"I'll remember that," said Lance, "unless you want to copyright it."

"How are you getting on, Lance?"

"Not so badly."

"What are you making? Are you making anything?"

There was a kind of closing up of Lance's face. It was as though all those blue flowers withered and the unseen presences withdrew.

"Yes—I am getting stuff placed. Richmond of 'Blair's' is interested. They're big people."

"Good. I've been thinking. Those two years. Nearly up. What about—"

"I'm going on, pater."

"I see. Nothing like responsibility, your own legs. Supposing you try a year—on your own."

"That's my plan—"

He glanced quickly at his father, who was looking straight ahead and smiling faintly to himself.

"Of course—you've got me to come to, my lad."

"You have given me these two years."

"O, that's all right. If you find—that you can't do—"

"I shall manage."

The illusion of that nearness had gone. His father's voice—turned to authority through all the years—had that fatal tinge of patronage.

His infections condescended to youth. It talked down even in his attempt to share a kindness; it betrayed that something behind the man and Lance's head was up. He was seeing the sky through the young green of the foliage, his father's foliage. He was wondering whether there was not something inherent in the reaction of most parents upon most children that rendered real intimacy between them impossible. It was one of those fatal and pathetic disillusionments shared by both fathers and sons, mothers and daughters, the illusion of a beautiful friendship that is rarely realized, because one assumes the possession—and the other refuses to be possessed.

Yet Probyn was blind. He thought that he had that, kindly, world-wide noose dangling over his son's head.

"Well—try a year on your own, old lad. You can always come to me—"

And the son—in silence—was saying:

"I shall never come to you."

Within three miles of Castle Craven there were other beech-woods and other blackbirds that sang in the spring of the year, but to Mary Merris the voice of her brother was the voice of every day.

"Mary, I'm bored."

He could put such varying expression into those few words. Sometimes the cry would be whimsical, sometimes peevish, sometimes the whimpering of a little boy, and always she would answer it with patience, and mostly with compassion, though she was not patient by nature, and when one is overtired compassion may falter.

On that May morning she saw him coming up out of the green glooms to the rail fence that ran east and west under the beech trees. The path was safe and he knew every foot of it, but he did not know that she was up above there looking down at him. He paused by the stile, testing it with his foot as he tested everything, and throwing a leg over the upper rail, he felt in his pocket for his pipe.

She stood watching her brother. He had not gone on with the filling of his pipe; he smoked too much, and tobacco at a shilling an ounce added to her problems. He sat there perched on the fence and looking as much a part of the wood as a man could, and had he been stripped of his clothes he would have resembled nothing so much as a lean, brown faun. Always he had an air of listening intently and a habit of turning his head from side to side. He turned his face towards her at this moment, and she felt the strangeness of being looked at, and not seen. His closed, sightless eyes had that effect upon her, and never had their grown quite hardened to their emptiness.

ITALIA MEN DRIFT TOWARD ISLAND

Experts Doubt Faint Radio Signal's Heard by Two Ships Came From Group in French Seaplane.

(Copyright, 1928.)

By the Associated Press.

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, June 22.—Waters and coasts of the archipelago were combed by aviators today in search for Roald Amundsen and the five men with him in the French seaplane, but without success. The party, which started in search of missing members of the Noble expedition, seemed to have disappeared more completely than those they sought to rescue. A notable effort was made by Maj. Penzo in the big hydro-airplane in which he flew here from Italy. The Major flew nearly 500 miles today, going as far as Bear Island, almost half way to the coast of Norway. He saw nothing of the missing plane.

Penzo flew most of the way at an altitude of 2300 meters (about 7000 feet). The weather was fine and clear and at that height he had opportunity to sweep wide stretches of ice and water. He covered practically all of the open sea in which the Amundsen plane might have come down.

Doubt on Radio Signal's

The negative result of this flight, coupled with failure of other planes to find a trace of Amundsen, has almost convinced experts here that faint radio signals heard last night by at least two vessels did not come from the missing plane. They pointed out that the explorations had gone far beyond the boundaries of the space in which the Amundsen plane might have come down.

There is a theory now that the rescue expedition may have been forced down on the ice in some fjord or other deep indentation of the coast. This is coupled with a belief that the Amundsen is unable to communicate with his agent, Capt. Wisting, at Kings Bay.

The faint wireless signals were heard by the coasting steamer Marita, which came into port today. The operator said he picked up a faint S O S at 11 o'clock last night. The plane was equipped with wireless, but the apparatus could be heard only 60 miles if the machine were at rest on the water. The Marita saw nothing of the missing men.

Another gleam of hope arose from a report that the ice-breaker Maligne also heard indistinct signals. That vessel, however, was not sure they came from the Amundsen plane. It requested further information.

Definite plans toward searching the coast of the archipelago were put into operation today by aviators who turned their attention toward Amundsen and away from the Noble. The latter now is in a situation that requires only patient waiting.

Swedish Plane Explores Coast.

The Swedish plane Upland, big jet-motored Junker piloted by Capt. Tornberg, explored the west coast of Spitzbergen, but found no trace of the Amundsen party.

Gen. Noble's party now is only 100 miles from Foyne Island, the last toward that piece of land. Some of the experts here suggested he might try making his way to the island. They recognize that the party would be handicapped by the broken leg of one of the men and the fact that Noble himself still is suffering from injuries suffered when the Italia was wrecked.

One of the arguments advanced in favor of this course was that the plane could exist for months on the ice. He also is fully equipped for such a journey, even though it is slow and painful. In fact, he has more equipment and supplies than his little group could transport. There were 728 pounds of the first batch of goods dropped by Maj. Maddalena and he received additional provisions.
